Hello Jeanne,

Greg Jarvis here. Good to connect with you again.

Yeah... we are relentless, especially now, because... well, you know... going public once again. I want to apologize ahead of time for any inconvenience this new set of communications might create for you. You have gone from raising your own children to being heavily involved with the next generation – your grandkids.

There is at least one more on its way and there is a bit of a struggle about who it is going to be. Perhaps, when you gals convene your coven (!) you can tune in and see what that is all about. For me personally, I would choose a Lamborghini, ha ha ha. Well, who knows... perhaps someday you could afford one, if you could fit into it. (Jeanne: I don't do well with low-to-the-ground cars).

My dearest friends,

We have all waited a very long time to complete this circle. It gives us great pleasure to be able to do that at this time. You have had your share of ups and downs... yeah, well... and at this time you are wondering if it is all worth it, and will it make a difference. Fortunately – and I can say this with certainty – there is much to be gained from this new response to the work we have done over the years with you and others for the benefit of this planet.

Time will only tell, as the others have already mentioned, but we are beyond excited. We have learned so much and have been schooled in the ways of the Magi. We understand our roles now and we know how to forgive the ignorance and to encourage the LOVE. We stand by you 100% and we also have the training now in how to keep you all protected. And, of course, you all have learned this as well.

I would like to speak to the FMBR constituents. It has been a bumpy road for some of you, but in the end you have held on and seen this project through. I would expect no less in your dedication towards the scientific implications of communication beyond the veil of your perceived world. And of course, you know that just because you can't see or touch it doesn't mean it doesn't exist.

You are brave souls for taking this on, and sticking with the program even when at times you had no idea where you were going or where you would end up. Dare I say there is still way more information to be gathered and a huge amount of discovering yet to be completed?

I was the one given the training with the NSA agent for telepathic communication. I lay low for quite some time after my death because I was not supposed to be communicating with Jeanne. I had no idea there was a possibility that someone else out there would be directed to interact with me or any of my fellow crew members. And yet that is what happened.

It was wonderful but terrifying at the time and we were instructed not to mention the other possibility to Jeanne and Regina. I understand it but I also resented those instructions. They both worked without knowing this almost from the beginning. It was a terrible time for me. I am not a dishonest person and I felt like I was lying to both of them. I am so very sorry, ladies. It was never my intention to keep the truth from you. Those were my instructions. If we hadn't followed them, we would have had to stop the communication, and it was too important.

And now you are wondering if there was anything else that was kept from you, any deep dark secrets which might put you in harm's way... no... no, not really. If we are to be public once again, we will choose the information pertinent to scientific study and response. We are not clowns and do not wish to entertain. We seek to inform, to make a difference, to bring closure and healing to people's hearts. That is our goal.

We already know that neither Jeanne or Regina have the technical background to be able to answer intense science questions... theories and mathematical structure... but there are others in FMBR, and we are hoping that with a bit more training that science may present itself. We will see. At any rate, this new/old friendship is gathering tremendous momentum and we are very grateful to all of you.

I am not one for long walks in the woods and sitting by the campfire when I am communicating this way, but I must admit it has been a long time since entering Jeanne's energy field and it feels very comforting, reminiscent of the "good old days" without all the pain and suffering.

I look forward to working with you lovely people... those FMBR persons who are interested in an up-close and personal look at life after the Challenger. Your organization has done some pretty progressive work and I would like to think that our time with you helped you and those who have been connected with the group to continue seeking and becoming fearless in the face of controversy.

I will talk more personally later, as necessary, but for now I'm simply coming in for VPI (voice print identification)... I love that Jeanne remembers stuff... these strange terms that would not really enter her experience level if it weren't for us.

Jeanne, I have a message from your brother. He treated you so harshly when you spoke of communicating with us so many years ago. He wants to be on record as making this huge apology for being an asshole. He quickly learned when he passed over that the world was a far more exciting place than he was ever led to believe. He had forgotten his "star memories," as the darkness consumed him so early on. He knows you know, but wanted it on record, documented as it were.

He is one helluva guy over here and has helped us tremendously with your work and all the things that go with it. Too bad his scientific mind was lost... he would have been a great asset to this work. Yes... there was that potential and it was fairly strong. Even the backups have backups.

So, to all you who will be reading this: My name is Greg Jarvis and I approve this message!

Thanks dear friends,

Greg
